Yes

Provide a link to your website where additional information about admissions requirements can be found:

<http://ed.mnsu.edu/advising/admission/onlineprofed.html>

Please provide any additional comments about or exceptions to the admissions information provided above:

Students are formally evaluated at specified transition points in Professional Education: 1) Admission, 2) Prior to student teaching, 3) Completion of student teaching and 4) Program completion. Note: Individual programs do have additional transition points often every semester. The MAT or Graduate Teacher Licensure program does require recommendations and a personal statement.

The Variance Request Process is designed to formalize the process by which a student may appeal a decision relating to Professional Concerns or program requirements. The Professional Education Review Board, representing the Professional Education unit evaluates each request on an individual basis. The Review Board will also automatically hear cases of students who may be placed on non-continuance or expulsion and will hear cases of professional concerns reports if candidates wish to appeal them. The committee is established for each academic year and consist of representatives from each professional education department in the College of Education. When a student from a major outside the College of Education has an appeal before the committee, a faculty member from the student's department may also serve on the committee.

For additional information please visit: <http://ed.mnsu.edu/resources/variance.html>

We hope to increase the number of graduates using the strategies outlined in 2011-2012. We also plan to develop a better method for tracking our enrollments in this program. Because the program is a "minor" housed within the English Department, the College of Education relies on faculty outside the teacher preparation programs to track this information. A more stream-lined method of collecting the numbers will help us fine-tune our recruiting efforts going forward.

Part of our requirements from the Minnesota Department of Education and Board of Teaching deal with diversity. For example: Sub point 4, Standard 3, diverse learners indicates a teacher must understand how students differ in their approaches to learning and create instructional opportunities that are adapted to students with diverse backgrounds and exceptionalities. All of our programs and teacher candidates must address this overall standard and the sub-standards contain within.

In addition, our College has an advisory board made up of superintendents, principals, classroom teachers, current and former students, and faculty from the college. This advisory board meets regularly to discuss what they are seeing and hearing. This information provides valuable feedback about our programs and students to our college and faculty. In addition, specific research is conducted through conversations with school partners and surveys of students and employers to understand the performance of candidates and the needs of schools.

Within our college we offer: courses that are carefully aligned to State Board of Teaching Standards of Effective Practice, thereby assuring that candidates are effectively licensed in Minnesota; case studies with reflection; extended field experiences with mentoring; service learning and context assignments with diverse populations where candidates lack exposure, understanding, or experience. Candidate placement rates are high and local districts seek teachers from our graduates.

Local SPED directors serve on focus groups and a Special Education Advisory Board meets regularly to report needs/trends for special education and student teaching supervisors systematically report trends noted during visits to surrounding schools.

Section IV Low-Performing

Provide the following information about the approval or accreditation of your teacher preparation program.

Is your teacher preparation program currently approved or accredited?

Yes

If yes, please specify the organization(s) that approved or accredited your program:

State
NCATE

Is your teacher preparation program currently under a designation as "low-performing" by the state (as per section 207(a) of the HEA of 2008)?

No

Section V Use of Technology

preparation program would be able to provide evidence upon request.

Does your program prepare teachers to:

- integrate technology effectively into curricula and instruction
Yes
- use technology effectively to collect data to improve teaching and learning
Yes
- use technology effectively to manage data to improve teaching and learning
Yes
- use technology effectively to analyze data to improve teaching and learning
Yes

Provide a description of the evidence that your program uses to show that it prepares teachers to integrate technology effectively into curricula and instruction, and to use technology effectively to collect, manage, and analyze data in order to improve teaching and learning for the purpose of increasing student academic achievement. Include a description of the evidence your program uses to show that it prepares teachers to use the principles of universal design for learning, as applicable. Include planning activities and a timeline if any of the four elements listed above are not currently in place.

- The pre-service teacher program prepares teachers to integrate technology effectively into curricula and instruction in several ways. All teacher candidates complete a rigorous class focused on integrating technology into teaching and learning. Students create technology enhanced lessons, explore best practices in technology integration, have hands on practice with tools such as Smart Boards, iMovies, wikis, or blogs and discuss and write about how, when, and why technology should be used in teaching and learning.
- Students participate in field experiences in the teacher preparation program which allow them to observe effective practicing teachers' integration of technology into teaching. Students share what they have learned through these observations in online forums, written work, and discussions.
- Students integrate technology in their education and content classes as they progress through the teacher preparation program. Students develop increasingly sophisticated technology integrated lessons as they approach student teaching.
- Principles of universal design are interwoven through the technology classes and in other courses in the preparation program. Students learn how to differentiate instruction using technology, and how to adapt and choose technology to meet the needs of diverse learners. Specific instruction includes using technology with ELL and special education students, as well as students with varying learning preferences, especially visual learners. Students learn how to deliver format in multiple formats using technology, including use of audio, video and multi-media.
- All students learn to use excel, tables, and grading software to collect, manage, and analyze data to improve student learning. They are required to complete assessments of lessons, aggregate and analyze data to determine if their teaching had the desired impact on student learning and redesign lessons to improve impact on student learning.
- All students learn to develop assessments aligned with state standards to collect student data.
- All students learn to use large scale assessment data such as state tests and the Northwest Education Measures of Academic Performance (used extensively by P-12 school district partners) to assess student learning progress and develop lessons and interventions differentiated to student needs. They also learn how to develop formative assessments aligned to standards to measure progress aligned to large scale assessments.
- Coursework in special education includes instruction in universal design principles, assistive technology, second life or another form or virtual reality, instructional software for planning and teaching lessons and units, and information on copyright, intellectual property, web-safety, and social networking sites in P-12 schools. In addition, graduate and undergraduate program students complete rigorous coursework in data-based decision making using various technology tools to monitor and graph progress. Also, special education programs contain a course in informal and formal assessment of individualized achievement and use technology to collect, score, and analyze data.

Section VI Teacher Training

Provide the following information about your teacher preparation program. Please note that choosing 'yes' indicates that your teacher preparation program would be able to provide evidence upon request.

Does your program prepare general education teachers to:

- teach students with disabilities effectively
Yes
- participate as a member of individualized education program teams
Yes
- teach students who are limited English proficient effectively
Yes

Provide a description of the evidence your program uses to show that it prepares general education teachers to teach students with disabilities effectively, including training related to participation as a member of individualized education program teams, as defined in section 614(d)(1)(B) of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, and to effectively teach students who are limited English proficient. Include planning activities and a timeline if any of the three elements listed above are not currently in place.

- All students are trained in developmental needs of students and the interventions and accommodations needed for students with disabilities and for students with limited English proficiency. They learn how to work with special educators and ESL specialists to assess and work collaboratively to meet IEP needs and limited English proficiency needs of students. Specific standards of effective practice from the State Board of Teaching are aligned in several courses and are monitored with assessments to determine candidate competency.
- Course work provides specific instruction in the development of differentiated curriculum planning, instruction, and assessment to meet the needs of student with disabilities, IEPs, and limited English proficiency.
- Field experiences and student teaching require candidates to document the needs of diverse populations in the classroom and to demonstrate assessment of impact on diverse student populations.

English proficient.

Does your program prepare special education teachers to:

- teach students with disabilities effectively
Yes
- participate as a member of individualized education program teams
Yes
- teach students who are limited English proficient effectively
Yes

Provide a description of the evidence your program uses to show that it prepares special education teachers to teach students with disabilities effectively, including training related to participation as a member of individualized education program teams, as defined in section 614(d)(1)(B) of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, and to effectively teach students who are limited English proficient. Include planning activities and a timeline if any of the three elements listed above are not currently in place.

Our program contains specific classes in research-validated instructional strategies that have been proven effective for working with students with disabilities. Literacy strategies are also included for students with limited English proficiency. Continuous emphasis is given to individualized education program teams throughout our programs, including courses in Due Process, Planning, and Design of IEP's, Special Education Law, Transition Planning, and Assessment, Evaluation, and Individualized Planning for Diverse Learners in our coursework.

Section VII Contextual Information

Please use this space to provide any additional information that describes your teacher preparation program(s). You may also attach information to this report card. The U.S. Department of Education is especially interested in any evaluation plans or interim or final reports that may be available.

Each year, the Career Development Center (CDC) is responsible for gathering and distributing the MnSCU Graduate Follow-up survey data for our campus. This data represents the status of individual graduates within one year following graduation. This year, we achieved an impressive overall response rate of 87.8% across all colleges and majors. Noteworthy items from the 2012 class include: • The overall employment rate for this group was 91.8%. For the College of Education, the related employment rate was 87.5%. • The overall related employment rate for the class of 2012 is 84.0%. Given what has been happening with the economy and the job market over the past several years, this decline in the related employment rate is not surprising and is consistent with what has occurred for other MnSCU schools and across the nation. • The College of Education class of 2012 had 16.1% of its graduates go on to continue their education.
